

SEEK FREE MRS. SLOAN TO SAVE HER MIND

16 Witnesses Heard at Waltham Hearing and Case Continued a Week.

Special to the Boston American.
WALTHAM, Oct. 10.—(Pressing that she will go mad in her cell because of worry over her act, counsel for Mrs. M. Sloan, who shot and killed Clinton C. Cobb, Jr., who shot and killed Clinton C. Cobb, Jr. in her home on September 25, brought the case up today in the District Court before Judge James T. Luce and Associate Judge Samuel T. Abbott. Middleboro attorney represented by Assistant District Attorney Charles J. Wolf and Mrs. Sloan by City Solicitor Thomas F. Carr. Lawyers want to have the charge changed from murder to manslaughter, so that the case may be held out.

Mrs. Sloan was brought into court and had to be escorted by attendants. She was pale and haggard and appeared as if she had been through a great deal of worry. She was dressed in a black dress and had her hair pulled up in a bun.

Cannot Eat or Sleep.
City Solicitor Carr has been warned by Mrs. Sloan's medical advisers that further confinement would mean great peril to her nervous system. Carr has been warned that if the case is not changed, Mrs. Sloan will be unable to eat or sleep and will become a danger to herself and others.

Charged with Murder. It is impossible to get out on bail, but Mrs. Sloan's attorneys, at least according to preliminary proceedings, are endeavoring to have the charge changed to manslaughter. In that event the defendant may be admitted to the hospital and removed from the deplorable influence of her prison environment.

Mrs. Sloan's defense was that she had shot Cobb while he was in the act of attacking her. She was trying to force him to leave the room of her daughter, Frances Sloan, who was then a child of five years of age. She said she had tried to make him go away, but he had refused to leave the room. She said she had then shot him.

Daughter Chief Witness.
Mrs. Frances, a very pretty girl, was the most important witness. She testified in detail the story which she gave extensively in the morning after the tragedy in the AMERICAN.

Sixteen witnesses in all were heard and then the case was adjourned until next Saturday to give Mr. Carr an opportunity to confer with Isaac H. Allen, Jr., who is representing the defense. Allen is a prominent attorney in Waltham and has been successful in many cases.

Mr. Carr said he is confident he can get Mrs. Sloan to agree to the change in the charge of $10,000 if necessary.

Easter Wins Nausea.
The grand stand hundreds stood up and yelled their boisterous cheer for No. 1, a bulky driver of Hugh Barker, dashed by as the winner of the Nassau sweepstakes. The Barker was the fourth in a line of cars that had been wrecked in the race. The first car was a Buick, the second a Buick, the third a Buick, and the fourth a Buick.

Betting at Opening of Detroit-Chicago Game Favored the Cub—Grand Rush for Tickets.

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, Oct. 10.—With 20,000 Detroit supporters looking on, drowning in their enthusiastic welcome to their team the lusty yells of its delegation of 1,500 Cub rosters from the home of the National League champions, the pennant winners in the two great leagues clashed to-day in the opening game of the series on which rests the right of the title "Champions of the Universe."

As the time for play drew near the weather became very threatening.

Though by no means the largest park in the American League, the Detroit enclosure to-day earned easily the right to be considered in line for the credit of being the prettiest. In spite of the advance season, the period of the playing field was as brilliant a green as in the balmy month of June.

A complete amphitheater with the team in the center, were the crowds that had come to see the baseball game. The Detroit fans were in the majority, but the Cub fans were not far behind. The game was a close one, with the Cub leading in the first inning, but the Detroit taking the lead in the second. The game ended in a tie, 3-3.

Baseball Notes on Hand.
Among the incidents in the struggle in the park were President Johnson of the American League and Chairman Herman of the National League, who were in the grandstand to see the game. The game was a close one, with the Cub leading in the first inning, but the Detroit taking the lead in the second. The game ended in a tie, 3-3.

Line Formed at Midnight.
The game was a close one, with the Cub leading in the first inning, but the Detroit taking the lead in the second. The game ended in a tie, 3-3.

ROTHSCHILD'S DROP THE BELMONT.
NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The late announcement by the Rothschild family that they had agreed to take over the $7,120,000 loan of the U. S. Loan and Trust Company has been interpreted by the Rothschild family as a sign of their financial strength.

RUMOR EVANS HAS BEEN FOUND GUILTY.
HARVARD, Oct. 10.—The rumor that Evans had been found guilty of having been interested during the past year in the sale of the U. S. Loan and Trust Company has been interpreted by the Rothschild family as a sign of their financial strength.

PAIR FIRE RAGING.
BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 10.—The modern Triggs County fire is still raging, the flames west of Baltimore, in the sudden shifting of the wind the heat has been turned to the north. A distance of fifty miles has been covered by the fire.

MEETING PUT OVER.
The annual meeting of the Chicago Cattle and Horse Raisers Association was further postponed to next Thursday, Oct. 16.

DETAILS OF DETROIT-CHICAGO GAME.

FIRST.—The first ball to Shekard was wide. Kilian then sneaked one over. Then Shekard hit through Cobb a single, when Cobb tried vainly to smother. The hit got through, and on the error Shekard continued to second. Every struck out. Schaefer whipped Stahl with a Roseman. Change walked and stole second. Stahl hit to Crawford, NO RUNS.

McIntyre singled to right, Cleary struck out. Crawford also fanned. McIntyre's second. Cobb singled over Stahl's head, and McIntyre scored. Cobb tried for second, but was thrown out by Shekard, ONE RUN.

RAIN FALLING AT BIG GAME.
DETROIT, Oct. 10.—It was raining heavily when the game began between Detroit and Chicago.

RACING RESULTS AT BELMONT PARK.
1st—Royal Captive, Atterton, Lady Salina.

REPUBLICAN EDITORS DISMAYED LEADERS.
The Massachusetts Association of Republican Editors held a meeting to-day at Boston to discuss the campaign for the State of Massachusetts. The meeting was held at the Hotel Marlborough. The meeting was held at the Hotel Marlborough.

AUTO VICTIM ON ROAD TO RECOVERY.
AUBURN, Me., Oct. 10.—Charles E. Williams, who was thought to have been seriously injured in an automobile accident at Curtis Corner, in Leeds, last night, in which his wife was killed, is said to-day to be on the road to recovery.

BIG INDICTMENT LIST AT PLYMOUTH.
PLYMOUTH, Oct. 10.—The Plymouth County Superior Court criminal docket to-day included indictments against Harry. The grand jury has returned the largest list of indictments on record. The term will probably last three or four weeks.

CANT REFUSES TO ACCEPT PROPRATE STAKE

STATEMENT GIVEN OUT IN LYNN THIS AFTERNOON; HOPE OF PEACE VANISHES.

Special to the Boston American.
LYNN, Oct. 10.—Through the refusal of the Cant to accept the terms of the settlement, the hope of peace has vanished. The Cant has refused to accept the terms of the settlement, and the hope of peace has vanished.

Cal Mass Meetings.
The hope today and that men, however, say that before they will become parties to an association which will not be able to pay back to work without discrimination, pending the outcome of the arbitration.

REQUIRE EXILED ARMY COLONEL.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The new reviewing board which has been investigating the death of Colonel William H. Stewart, the so-called "first great call," has concluded its work and will make its report in a few days. It is understood that the board will recommend the exiling of Stewart.

DONOVAN AND SON LIKELY TO RECOVER.
Barnstable, Mass., Oct. 10.—The reviewing board which has been investigating the death of Colonel William H. Stewart, the so-called "first great call," has concluded its work and will make its report in a few days. It is understood that the board will recommend the exiling of Stewart.

Boston American

BALLET

EUROPEAN TOURS

JULY
August 1968

Dorothy L. Brown

not unkind of your various kind actions toward me.
"With kindest regards,
"Yours sincerely,
"JOHN LOWDEN McLAURIN."
"To Mr. JOHN D. ARCHBOLD."
Well, Mr. Roosevelt surely did take a twenty-nine million dollar fall out of the Standard Oil gang, and the Standard Oil Company are going to nail his hide to their barndoor if they can, and Honest Thomas Hagen has taken many a fall out of the Standard Oil gang, and the Standard Oil gang are going to nail his hide to their barndoor if they can,

All of which leads up to a puzzle for all of you to take home and work out carefully. What group is the Standard Oil support in this campaign? Do not all be in a hurry to say the Socialist party, because that is not the right answer. Think carefully. Think which party got the three hundred thousand dollar campaign fund. Think what party had a Standard Oil agent as chairman of its committee on its platform. Think which party had a Standard Oil treasurer to collect those contributions of deposit we hear so much

Think carefully. It is worth more than five hundred dollars to every citizen who knows about the corrupter of the people's government, the Standard Oil, is going to support in any campaign. Remember that their policy is to protect their friends and punish their enemies.

If the citizens of this nation are to exercise their rightful control of their own government they also must protect their friends and punish their enemies.

The candidate of the Independence party, Mr. Hiscen, is a man of the people, whose sympathies are with the people. He has suc-

known as "Honest Tom Hilsen." He is known, too, as the able business man whom the power of the Standard Oil could not crush and the power of the Standard Oil could not buy. If you have reasonable doubts where the secret and corrupting influences of the Standard Oil are to be found in this campaign, rest assured of one thing: that they are not to be found in support of the honest and fearless candidate of the Independence party, the Hon. Thomas L. Hilsen.

COUSED, LES HISGEN

to consideration the record of Mr. Hearst. He has always been found fighting in the interests of the people. He has always struck at graft wherever he could find it. He has always fought for the welfare of the men who toil and uphold their hands in controversies with corporations wealthy when it tried to oppress them. I know the calibre of Mr. Hearst, and I give you my assurance that he will not be a man of a minute that changes over night. What he fights for to-day will be fighting for tomorrow.

I have made a fight myself in the interest of the people with the great

"I do not say that the Standard Oil Company set the fire, but in Lloyd's records are produced showing the kind of men connected with the Standard

[illegible]

The Joint Committee of the allied societies of British affiliation, namely, Canadian, Victorian and Intercolonial Clubs and Societies, Victorian and Intercolonial Clubs and Societies and British Charitable Societies, have completed all arrangements for "a banquet to Ambassador Hryvo to be given at the Mouquet Hotel next Monday evening.

The list of speakers includes Attorney General Malton, Mayor Hiltz, Mr. Herbert Parker, Professor F. C. Heilmann, Alexander Macdougall, president of the Canadian Club, and other members. There is only a limited number of tickets. They can be obtained at the L. A. Office, 1100 Washington Street, or at L. A. Macdougall, chairman of ticket committee.

Following a meeting of the Brooklyn Republican town committee Chairman Leonard C. Waxson, Herbert H. Chase and Jesson Wiley will present the names of twenty-three Democrats to the District Court next week, and ask that they be prosecuted for violating the laws governing voting at caucuses.

They are accused of attempting to vote at a Republican caucus, although they had voted at a Democratic caucus within two months.

All of which leads up to a puzzle for all of you to take home and work out carefully. What great reform party is going to get the Standard Oil support in this campaign? Do not all be in a hurry to say the Socialist party, because that is not the right answer. Think carefully. Think what party had the three hundred thousand dollar campaign fund. Think what party had a Standard Oil agent as chairman of its committee on its platform. Think what party had a Standard Oil treasurer to collect those certificates of deposit we hear so much

COUSED, LES HISGEN

[illegible]

VOTE IN THE

The BOSTON SUNDAY AM of contestants, to date, in the 190 Sunday schools of Boston an up to 3 p. m. to-day will be pub ing changes over that of a week

EVERYBODY WILL WANT

Study the list of candidates teacher is included. If she isn't, LOTS TO THE AMERICAN OF in the list. DO SOMETHING

Dahlgren, who was to have moved to the new house at No. 597 Westford on Monday, left his home on West have been received. It is more likely that the money will be needed for more campaign purposes such as the buying of balls, sending printed material and for the distribution, for advertising purposes and in various other ways.

From a check in the western part of the State, a banker for $25 has been received. A merchant of Lowell has also given for the State campaign (L. 1900) $25. From him has given $25. Contributions should be sent to the American, treasurer of the State Committee, No. 9 Beacon street.

From the State Committee a copy of "Independency" has been received. It is a very valuable office. No. 210 South Boston street. It is a very valuable office. No. 210 South Boston street. It is a very valuable office. No. 210 South Boston street.

Very Hesperian man who can see one of the best of medals and gold coins to the campaign expenses.

ESPEYERS

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The finding of the bodies led to the belief the couple had been murdered by police, after an investigation, declared it was a double suicide.

Drumpt' week on the part of the
and the employees in the place what started out to be a routine wholesale provision house of Bang Hudson to the Henry Street of the North End, Boston, in early today.

The trouble was caused by the
of two fires encountered with the
of the North End, Boston, in
early today.

The Casey boy, with two was leaning far over the bridge dropping sticks into and then rushing to the opposite shore and starting to swim down river. He leaped too far in his excitement at heart beat the other two by some 100 yards into the river at point.

His playmates rushed to Eder's little shanty and told his elders. By the time Murphy's bridge rail all that was left of the boy was his floating to permit the construction to accommodate the damage between hampers by being able during the hours of low tide needed for more time to complete Mayor Wardwell's request is Commission has been refused.

[illegible]

by a firm clutch upon the commenced his battle against tossed more.

Time and time again he against the chilly water, resisted back by the current swimming at a tangent where so utterly exhausted himself on the only dashed out by the churning gathered on the bridge minute battle with death.

The rescued schoolboy
how at No. 111 Pleasant bridge, where in a week-ended out in a weakened under the care of a doctor places about the premises arrested.

to the last rights of
to save their proper hands of politicians exhausted.

If Boston needs
Commission on the Com needs two; one to and the other to result is properly
No man ever ide politics should be mission, much less sion that dictates handles the people

I wonder where moth came from,
Yours truly

GEO. J. RAY

364 Washington St.
Boston, Mass.

thought his way only to be ear-st. Finally by he reached the
that he dropped statement when hundreds who during his five was sent to his t street, Cam-elived Murphy, condition, was for two hours.

and Welch was the people erty from the ns becomes

s a Finance mmonwealth do the work
see that the aken care of.
ntified with on any comany commisthe use of, or e's money.
this lonely
$13.72?

RAYMOND

St.,

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 10, 1908

Mr. Bryan's 'My Record' What Is His Record?

When Mr. Roosevelt gets after Mr. Bryan with the big stick the latter parries the blows with "My record." When the workmen ask him whether or no he called them "a lot of public beggars" his only answer is "My record." What is this citadel, this inner keep to which Mr. Bryan always retires when bested in the open? Here are the cold facts coldly told:

In 1890 Mr. Bryan is elected to Congress as a Populist. The Democrats have a House majority, and Mr. Bryan in 1891 becomes a Democrat. For fear of "an old soldier element along the Platte"—as he himself expressed it—he refuses to vote in caucus for Speaker Crisp, who was an ex-Confederate.

In this Congress Mr. Bryan was a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He professed also to be for silver. He did nothing for either tariff or silver. He did nothing at all.

Mr. Bryan, in 1892, voted for Mr. Weaver, Populist, against Mr. Cleveland, the Democratic candidate for the White House. Looking after his own interests, he leaped from his new Democracy into half-Populism, and returned to Congress on a mule ticket—half-Populist, half-Democrat. He again took his place on the Ways and Means Committee, of which Mr. Wilson was chairman.

Behind locked doors, what was Mr. Bryan's committee "record" in the clause-by-clause construction of the Wilson bill? He voted to free the new sugar because the Sugar Trust desired it. He voted for a high tariff on refined sugar because the Sugar Trust desired it. He did not dare urge an income tax, lest it militate against the revenue arguments being made in support of a high tariff on refined sugar.

Mr. Bryan voted to reduce the tax on fine Havana tobacco $3,300,000 a year. He voted to reduce the tax on superior wines, brandies and spirits $1,500,000. He voted $500,000 off the tax on silk. He voted to cut down the tax on kid gloves, jewelry and sealskin $1,279,000. Off the tax on superfine wools and broadcloth he voted $18,000,000. Thus was he good to the rich.

Also, when they presented their views on tariff to the committee, Mr. Bryan called the workers of America "a lot of public beggars."

Mr. Bryan made a deal with the Populists in 1895 to stamp Virginia against Mr. O'Reilly, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and then side-stepped the compact in a right when Mr. O'Reilly defied him to keep it. He sought the silver propaganda nomination for President in 1896, but was put aside in favor of Mr. Sibley—Mr. Sibley of Standard Oil and Pennsylvania.

In 1896 Mr. Bryan came seeking in St. Louis the silver Republican bolters' nomination for Vice-President. The bolters named no ticket.

Mr. Bryan went to Chicago in 1896 pledged to Mr. Bland. He made his cross of gold speech and was himself named for the presidency. He made a Jack Cade campaign. It was a case of "All the realm shall be in common." A day was to dawn, a Bryan day, which should see "seven half-penny loaves for a penny." He promised that "the three-hooped pot shall have ten hoops," and it should be "felony to drink small beer." Mr. Bryan was beaten in that campaign.

Mr. Bryan started the Commoner. Subscribers flocked in, 180,000 of them, at a dollar a head. Mr. Bryan began to grow rich. He lectured for churches—and charged the churches $180 a lecture. He made speeches at county fairs—and charged $150 a speech. As recently as the late Atlanta celebration he made a political speech for himself—and charged the Atlanta committee $300 and expenses.

Between 1896 and 1898 Mr. Bryan accepted $12,500—by his own sworn testimony—from the besotted Mr. Bennett. Then he secretly drew Mr. Bennett's will—Bryan's wife, for the better secrecy of it, doing the typewriting—by which he was to have $20,000 to give away and $50,000 for himself. Mr. Bennett died, and Mr. Bryan fought through three Connecticut courts to collect the money from Mr. Bennett's widow. Mr. Bryan did not get the $50,000, being defeated horse, foot and gun.

In 1900 Mr. Bryan tried another Jack Cade campaign, and took another drubbing.

In 1904, while pretending to acquiesce in Mr. Parker's nomination, he did his best to make certain the Euphorus one's defeat. Mr. Bryan takes advantage of the situation to work upon the fears of Mr. Thomas Fortune Ryan, who sends him $20,000—for "Mr. Bryan's Senate campaign"—to keep him from attacking Mr. Parker.

Mr. Bryan goes to Europe. He returns to declare for public ownership of railways—and abandons the declaration as soon as it is made.

Mr. Bryan, having advantage of Mr. Roosevelt's war on Standard Oil, makes secret alliance with that great felon of the companies. It was from Standard Oil he got Mr. Haskell, who helped him draw the Denver platform, with all its "omitted issues," omitted in favor of the trusts.

Mr. Bryan made Mr. Haskell of Standard Oil his treasurer. When Mr. Hearst uncovered that devious gentleman's Standard Oil affiliations Mr. Bryan, with a real show of virtuous indignation, kicked Mr. Haskell out. But Mr. Bryan did NOT kick out the money Mr. Haskell had collected. In place of Mr. Haskell Mr. Bryan made Mr. Ridder his treasurer—Mr. Ridder, a professional laborer and labor fighter, as is also Mr. Bryan's manager, Mr. Mack.

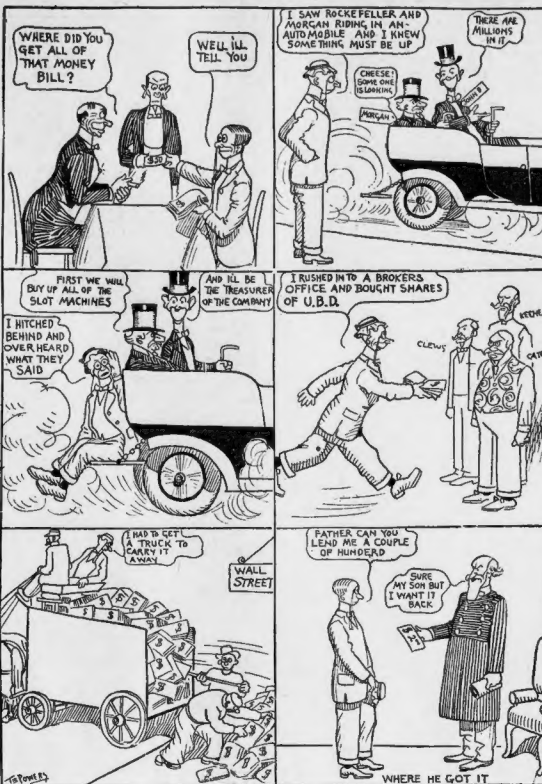

There, down to date, you have that marvelous record behind which Mr. Bryan, when frightened, is so prone to hide.

What has he done?

Nothing.
Mr. Bryan has BEEN things, SAID things, DONE NOTHING at all. Yes; he has done one thing. He has turned his back on what principles he professed in 1890 and 1890, and crossed over, soul and body, to the enemy.

Mr. Bryan has TALKED a great deal about what ought to be done. But what has he ever performed? In his present coming before the people for their votes he reminds one of a small child who says to its nurse, "You give me what I want and some time I will give you something—maybe."

Mr. Bryan's record is the wind's record—the record of a political high wind—the record of the east wind of Democracy, that has chilled and blighted every prospect the party had.

What Is Your Need?

It Is So Far Better to Know That, and Strive to Attain It, Than Always Have What You Want

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

DESIRE

O joy for which thy hungering soul has pined,
No hope it cherishes through waiting years,
But, if thou dost desire it, shall be granted;
For, with each passionate with the blessing years,
Tune up the life, strong, instrument of thy being,
To chord with thy dear hope, and do not tire.
When both in key and rhythm are agreeing,
Lo! thou shalt kiss the lips of thy desire.

The thing thou cravest so waits in the distance,
Wrapt in the silence unseen and dumb—
Invisible to the soul and the senses,
Live worthy of it, call, and it shall come.

YOU are wanting something to-day. You want it, and you are certain life will never mean real happiness until that one thing is given you. But are you sure it would never happen if it were given you?

A few years ago a young millionaire wanted a certain woman for his wife. He married her. A short time afterward two other young millionaires wanted two other women for their life companions. Both obtained their heart's desire; two of them through much trouble.

All three are separated to-day, after living in great unhappiness for years. No one of these three men was capable of knowing what he really needed in life; they only knew what they wanted.

A young woman started out in life with beauty, good name, and money enough to give her every luxury. She believed she wanted the love of a certain young man to complete her happiness. Before she fulfilled her promise to become his wife, she met a man of large wealth and considered that what was needed to be happy. The man died and left her a beautiful widow with a vast fortune.

FATHER CAN YOU LEAD ME A COUPLE OF HUNDRED MILES?
SURE MY SON I WANT IT BACK.
WHERE HE GOT IT

One Woman's Lesson
Then she wanted the husband of another woman. She obtained her heart's desire; and now her one wish is to get rid of the man. She is doing it (or he is riding himself of her) through causing scandal and public disgrace.

All of these unfortunate began life with what is called "a silver spoon." Indeed, with a golden spoon, so not with jewels that it made their mouths callous and insensitized from getting the right taste of happiness. If you are longing for wealth as your heart's desire—just moneybags and banks and mines of money—get a man to do wisely to stop and ask yourself what you would do with this money—your money.

Then you have mentally and spiritually and morally and physically fitted yourself to be God's dispenser of wealth. You would make yourself and others miserable with great wealth.

It requires wisdom, self-control, clear seeing and fine perception, as well as generosity and sympathy, to give away money and have it do good instead of harm. No person who desires the sense of personal responsibility—the greatest quality, after love, which a human being can possess.

The whole trouble with the wretched and miserable crowd of New York millionaires is that they have no sense of personal responsibility. They have no idea that money buys everything, and makes up for all sins of omission.

They fling money to agents to give to the poor, and they are not for a moment considering that they are the world's larger obligation than this—the world of self-controlled, sane, clean, decent, useful lives.

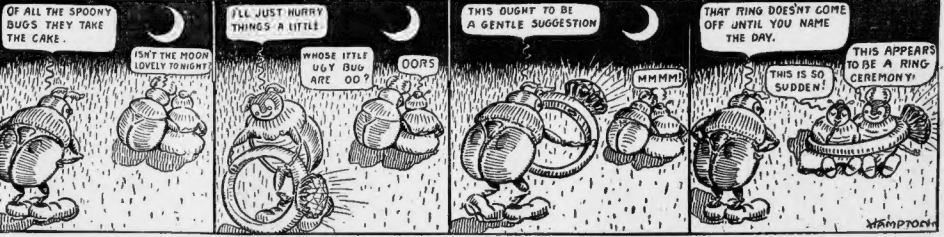

This is what God wants, and what money and the world need. No amount of charitable gifts to the poor can make up for the lack of such citizens in the world.

Use Your Powers
If you are such a citizen, and if your life is built on the foundation of just, noble and wholesome ideals; if you have cultivated gratitude, appreciation, cheerfulness, hope and courage, then you possess all the powers that make the magnet for success in all your life, and will draw to yourself what you NEED, and it will never turn to dead sea fruit on your shore.

It is only the things we WANT and do not NEED which cause our pain and will draw to ourselves all the evil and will draw to yourself what you NEED, and it will never turn to dead sea fruit on your shore.

And the one important thing for you to do is to begin a little home-reading. Dig over the soil of your mind with the daily papers, and the magazines, and the books, and the faith in eternal laws of gratitude for your blessings, of belief in your future, of faith in the power of prayer, and wait with patience, and your harvest shall grow and bring your heart's desire.

FOXY QUILLER BUG IS A RINGER

TIGHTWADDO THE MONK GETS A FASHION PAPER

